Tips from your Credit Union to keep you and your information Safe

These common red flags can help you detect potential Fraud:

- Check for misspelled words, bad grammar, and/or typos within the content
- Don't always trust the name - criminals will spoof the email name to appear to be a legitimate sender
- Be cautious of clicking links and opening attachments – Don't click unless you are confident of the sender or are expecting the attachment
- Do not provide personal or account information when asked. Openly sharing information on social media can provide the necessary information to impersonate you or answer some challenge questions.
- Do not share a one-time passcode sent via text or email to your device(s)
- Check email salutations - many legitimate businesses will use a personal salutation
- Be suspicious of "urgent" or "immediate" response needed or "unauthorized login attempt" of your account
- Know the IRS or Social Security Administration will not contact you by phone, email, text or social media
- Don't believe everything you see. Brand logos, names and addresses may appear legitimate
- Be suspicious of random or unusual groups of people (e.g., all last names begin with same letter) on the to/recipient list
- Watch for emails or texts that appear to be a reply to a message that you didn't actually send
- Monitor the sender's email address for suspicious URLs & domains – using similar letters and numbers
- If something seems suspicious; contact that source with a new email or phone call, rather than just responding or replying directly to the email, text, or call
- Be wary of offers that appear too good to be true, require fast action, or instill a sense of fear
- Keep social media accounts private and be cautious who you're connecting with
- Never share anything related to your credit union account, transactional history, or identifying information in an unprotected public forum
